BETTING DUTY REDUCED

CUT OF A HALF PER CENT

TO OPERATE IN THE AUTUMN

The duty on pari-mutuel betting in Hongkong is to be reduced from three per cent. to two and a half per cent.

This interesting information is contained in the draft bill published to-day, which is to amend the Betting Duty Ordinance of 1931.

The Government Gazette states that section 3 of the new ordinance reduces from three per cent. to two and a half per cent. the duty on totalisator or pari-mutuel bets authorised under the principal ordinance.

The amended ordinance comes into operation before the opening of the Autumn racing season.

DUTCH BANK RATE REDUCED

COMPLETE RESTORATION OF GUILDER

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, July 15, 9.51 a.m.)

Amsterdam, July 15. The bank rate was to-day reduced by one-half per cent. to 4 per cent.

This move is generally regarded as indicating the complete restoration of the guilder.

Close co-operation between the Central banks of the gold countries has also helped in the reduction of the Dutch bank rate.—United Press.

Failure of Another Convention

The United States, Japan, the Netherlands, and Norway, are the only Governments still remaining parties to the International Convention for the Abolition of Imports and Exports Prohibitions and Restrictions, stated Captain Anthony Eden, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the House of Commons to-day.

He added that all the other signatories had attached to their ratifications conditions which had not been fulfilled.—Reuter.

SEIZURE OF PROPERTY

HITLER'S LATEST DECREE

"ENEMIES OF THE STATE"

Berlin, July 14.

The Hitler Cabinet has provided a fresh sensation by adopting new laws providing for the confiscation of the property of "enemies of the State."

The confiscatory powers granted under the laws include the seizure of property belonging to organisations and private persons inciting against Germany from abroad.

Germans living abroad who are regarded as disloyal to the State or who refuse to return to Germany when summoned, including the prominent Socialist leaders who are living in exile, are liable to have their entire property in Germany confiscated.

A further act of the Hitler Dictatorship is the making of the formation of new political parties a treasonable offence.—Reuter.

Honourable Settlement Wanted by Congress

Poona, July 14.

After rejecting by a big majority a resolution urging the unconditional abandonment of civil disobedience, the conference of the Congress Party to-day voted overwhelmingly in favour of a resolution calling off acts of disobedience provided an honourable settlement is reached between the Viceroy and Mahatma Gandhi.

The conference had previously thrown out a resolution in favour of Gandhi's scheme of "individual disobedience."—Reuter.

London, July 14.

The silver rehabilitation advocates are now less optimistic regarding the possibility of obtaining a worldwide agreement on the white metal.

The depressive feeling was exhibited following private conversations with the representatives of countries other than the three chief holding countries and the five chief producing nations.

An Eight-Power Agreement for the control of output and sales was actually reached.

CONTINGENT PACT.

The agreement was, however, only tentative. It was contingent upon other countries agreeing to various measures for assisting in restoring silver prices.

One of the conditions was that other countries should agree not to further debase their silver coinage and also to reach an agreement to remonetize subsidiary silver coinage and not to withdraw any silver coins from circulation.

COOL RECEPTION.

The efforts to get other countries to agree to these measures met with a very cool reception and there is little reason to hope that further negotiations will achieve any better result.

Unless, therefore, Senator Key Pittman and his supporters, are able to induce the other parties to the Eight-Power Agreement to accept it as it stands without reservations, it seems probable that it will fall to the ground.

Chief opposition to the suggested silver measures comes from the gold countries.

BOMBAY SHIPMENT.

It is learned from Bombay that a large consignment of silver, worth one crore, fifty-four lakhs and 22,167 rupees, the second and last part of the British war debt instalment has been shipped to Kobe aboard the Ranchi en route to San Francisco.

As the shipment meant only the transfer from the Bombay Mint to the American Treasury the market was not affected.—United Press.

DUTCH OBJECTIONS.

London, July 14.

Senator Pittman, interviewed on the subject of yesterday's silver meeting, explained that the basis of the Dutch objection was that there were points in the resolution which the Dutch felt might imperil their silver payments.

He was sure that the necessary changes could be made in the resolution on conferring with the Dutch delegate, Heer Beyen.—Reuter.

CHINA'S NEW DUTIES

FURTHER PROTESTS IN COMMONS

COLONIAL OFFICE DEBATE

London, July 14.

The decentralisation scheme in Malaya and the grave damage done to Hongkong trade by the new Chinese customs tariff were the principal topics of discussion in the House of Commons to-night.

The House was considering the Colonial Office Estimates submitted by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, the Secretary of State, which were approved.

Sir Philip, at one stage, expressed himself as horrified at the complete ignorance of the government system in Malaya shown in the speech delivered by Col. Wedgwood.

He declared it to be a perfect travesty to talk about the Government's decentralisation decision as handing over complete control of the administration of the country to the Rajahs.

COLONIAL TRADE.

In the course of a comprehensive survey of conditions in the Colonies, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister said that despite the tremendous fall in prices, the exports from Britain to the Colonies had increased by more than sixty per cent. since 1924.

He reviewed the progressive effects of the Ottawa Agreements on the Colonies and said they were particularly assisting the development of the timber industry, notably of the Malayan types, which hitherto had not been brought into use.

"SCUTTLE" SUGGESTION.

He declared that there was nothing in the Report on Malaya drawn up by Sir Samuel Wilson which altered in the slightest the present powers of the High Commissioner.

There was no question, he declared, of altering by one comma the treaties binding the British Government there.

He scouted the suggestion of "scuttling" made by Colonel Wedgwood.

In the course of the debate, Mr. Entwistle commented severely upon Japanese competition in cotton goods in different parts of the Empire.

He pointed out that besides the denunciation of the treaty affecting West Africa, there still remained the Congo Basin Treaty affecting West Africa.

CHINA TARIFF.

He pointed out that the tariff on cotton goods, particularly

WORLD CONFERENCE.

Acute Feeling of Pessimism

THREE INTERESTING RESOLUTIONS

London, July 14.

The date of the re-assembly of the World Economic Conference is conjectural. The feeling generally is one of the utmost pessimism.

The favourite theory is that framework committees will return to Geneva with the Secretariat and, in the absence of a definite solution of the currency stabilisation problem by the Autumn, advantage will be taken of the presence of world delegates to the League Assembly, to hold a meeting to set the seal on such agreements, notably regarding the various commodities, as may have been reached.

GOLD STANDARD.

Resolutions relating to the working of central banks were adopted practically without discussion by the Sub-Commission of the World Conference dealing with permanent measures for financial reconstructions.

The first resolution was "This Conference considers it essential, in order to provide an international gold standard with the necessary mechanism for satisfactory working, that independent central banks with the requisite powers and freedom to carry out an appropriate currency and credit policy should be created and developed in countries which have not at present an adequate central banking institution."

INTERNATIONAL BANK.

The second resolution reads, "The Conference wish to reaffirm the declaration of previous conference regarding the great utility of close and continuous co-operation between central banks."

The Bank for International Settlements should play an increasingly important part not only by providing contact but also as an instrument of common action."

The third resolution after taking note of a Roumanian suggestion that the central banks of certain agricultural countries should be adapted to their special economic conditions, expressed the opinion of sub-committee that local conditions would to a very large extent determine the measures to be adopted and suggested that if any countries desired advice such requests made would be considered by international organisations specially competent to advise on them.

AMERICANS SILENT.

There was general surprise that the American delegates did not speak against either the first or the second resolution.—Reuter.

MANCHUKUO THREAT IN C.E.R. DISPUTE

SABOTAGE CHARGE

READY TO OUST SOVIET OFFICIALS

WARNING GIVEN

Harbin, July 15.

According to the Harbin Times, Mr. Li Shao-keng has received instructions from the Ministry of Communications, Peking, to remove the Soviet officials of the C.E.R. if they continue to maintain their previous sabotage policy, which is resulting in C.E.R. losses and preventing essential reforms.

The dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway is, in fact, reaching a dangerous stage.

No progress is being made in the sale negotiations in Tokyo while efforts to ease the freight situation are meeting with opposition from Manchukuo.

According to a Reuter report from Moscow, all attempts to obtain an exchange of freight cars between the Ussuri Railway and the C.E.R. at Pograditchyna appear to have been fruitless.

NO EXCHANGE.

The chairman of the Administrative Board of the C.E.R., Mr. Li Shao-keng, has informed the foreign consuls who attempted to obtain a settlement from him, that the government of Manchukuo will not agree to an exchange of cars, many of which have been held up in Pograditchyna ever since the suspension of through traffic between the Ussuri Railway and the C.E.R. lines.

It is understood, however, that as a partial solution of the difficulties, Mr. Li Shao-keng has proposed that the goods belonging to foreign exporters should be returned to Harbin by the Chinese Eastern Railway, free of charge. He points out that they could then be sent via the South Manchurian Railway and Dairen.—Reuter.

exercise the greatest care in the choice of baby's food. So a baby in later years depends on the foundation laid in infancy. With the mother lies a big responsibility, the welfare of the coming generation. The tropics especially call for a healthy constitution. For baby, therefore, the best only is good enough. This is the reason why you should give baby plenty of "BEAR BRAND" milk. It does more than merely nourish, it builds up the whole system, it paves the way to perfect health and success in life. BEAR BRAND comes from the great Swiss Milk Centre, the Emmenthal. It is very rich in nutritive elements, absolutely pure and an infant food par excellence. THE WORLD OF WOMEN

QUAINT WRAPS FOR GALA EVENINGS

Puffed Sleeves and Pleated Shoulders Lend Charm to This Trio

By Joan Savoy

The featherweight summer evening wraps are utterly quaint and charming. You can have them of the same material as your dress, whether it's silk, satin, crepe, linen or seersucker. But if you get the right little gadget to throw about you, the chances are that you can wear it with several things and always feel kind of gay in it.

The most old-fashioned little gem seen in many a day is a little gray printed taffeta jacket (left), the fine little print being a dainty flower superimposed on a hairline stripe of red. The jacket goes in for sleeves in a big way, but gets over the idea by the time they hit the elbows and the cuffs are skin tight. It fastens with a single old-fashioned gray pearl button.

If you are going places and must have an evening coat that's good from sundown on, or even for afternoon teas, a black velvet, with something new in cartridge pleated shoulder cuffs, is a good choice. The coat (centre) has an Ascot scarf, finished with the pleating, too. For the girl who just must have her glamour, there is a stunning white matisse swagger coat (right) that has restraint enough to become a lady when dressed her most lady-like self. It is a little bit Chinese, with stand-up collar, then quaint as to pleated shoulders on the full sleeves. There are three very unusual rhinestone buttons, the top one three ply, the second two and the third one. They are effective on the beautiful white material.

YOUR CHILDREN

Help the Child, to Be Sure, But Let Him Think for Himself

By Olive Roberts Barton.

What happens when someone stands behind you at the bridge table and criticises?

You flare up instantly and although you may be too polite to say so, you resent his interference to the point of making deliberately wrong plays just to spite him.

None of us can stand to be told and told over again about our own business. We may be wrong, but it is our game and we must learn it ourselves.

To go on with bridge as an object lesson, suppose the two opponents consist of a good player and a bad player. We will watch the good player and try to learn his moves. We will copy the bad player perhaps also, but in time we will learn more from the good player than the bad, because our instinct tells us that more is to be gained from right than from wrong. The one person we refuse to learn from is the kibitzer, no matter how fine a player he may be.

A Helper Is Different

If however, it is understood before we start that the person behind our chair is there for a distinct purpose, to help and guide us from time to time, because he is interested in us and not in himself, because he is unselfish and friendly and fine, then that is different. We show him our hand and ask advice, and respect what he says.

Now lift the bridge table and put there the complicated structure of the world. The child is learning a new game, life, with good and bad players. Behind him stands his mother with ever ready advice.

She is in American vernacular a "kibitzer," because she stands behind her child and tells him what to do. A kibitzer can be a good adviser as well as bad.

Child's Attitude Important

What is the child's attitude going to be? One of irritation because she is forever nagging at him to play her way, or one of trust and friendliness because he knows she is really trying to help? If she knows that nature is to be trusted and that he is sure to learn better with her as quiet guide, he is lucky in having such a mother. But if she wants him to play the game her way, telling him every minute what he should do, it is likely he will get tired of being told and pay not the slightest attention to her in the end.

It is the attitude with which a child listens to his parents' advice that counts. Be sure he is thinking for himself. He may do wrong but he will learn mostly what is right, given any chance at all. Once he learns resentment against advice from his mother, he will resent it from almost everybody. He will deliberately make wrong plays for spite.

This is why all suggestion must be a tactful thing. Parents cannot expect children to play the hand exactly as they would play it themselves. Life after all is a lone hand.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Thick Ankles Are No
Disgrace

By Alicia Hart.

If you have thick ankles, don't give up the ship! Go to an art gallery and gaze at some of the ancient Greek beauties—and take heart.

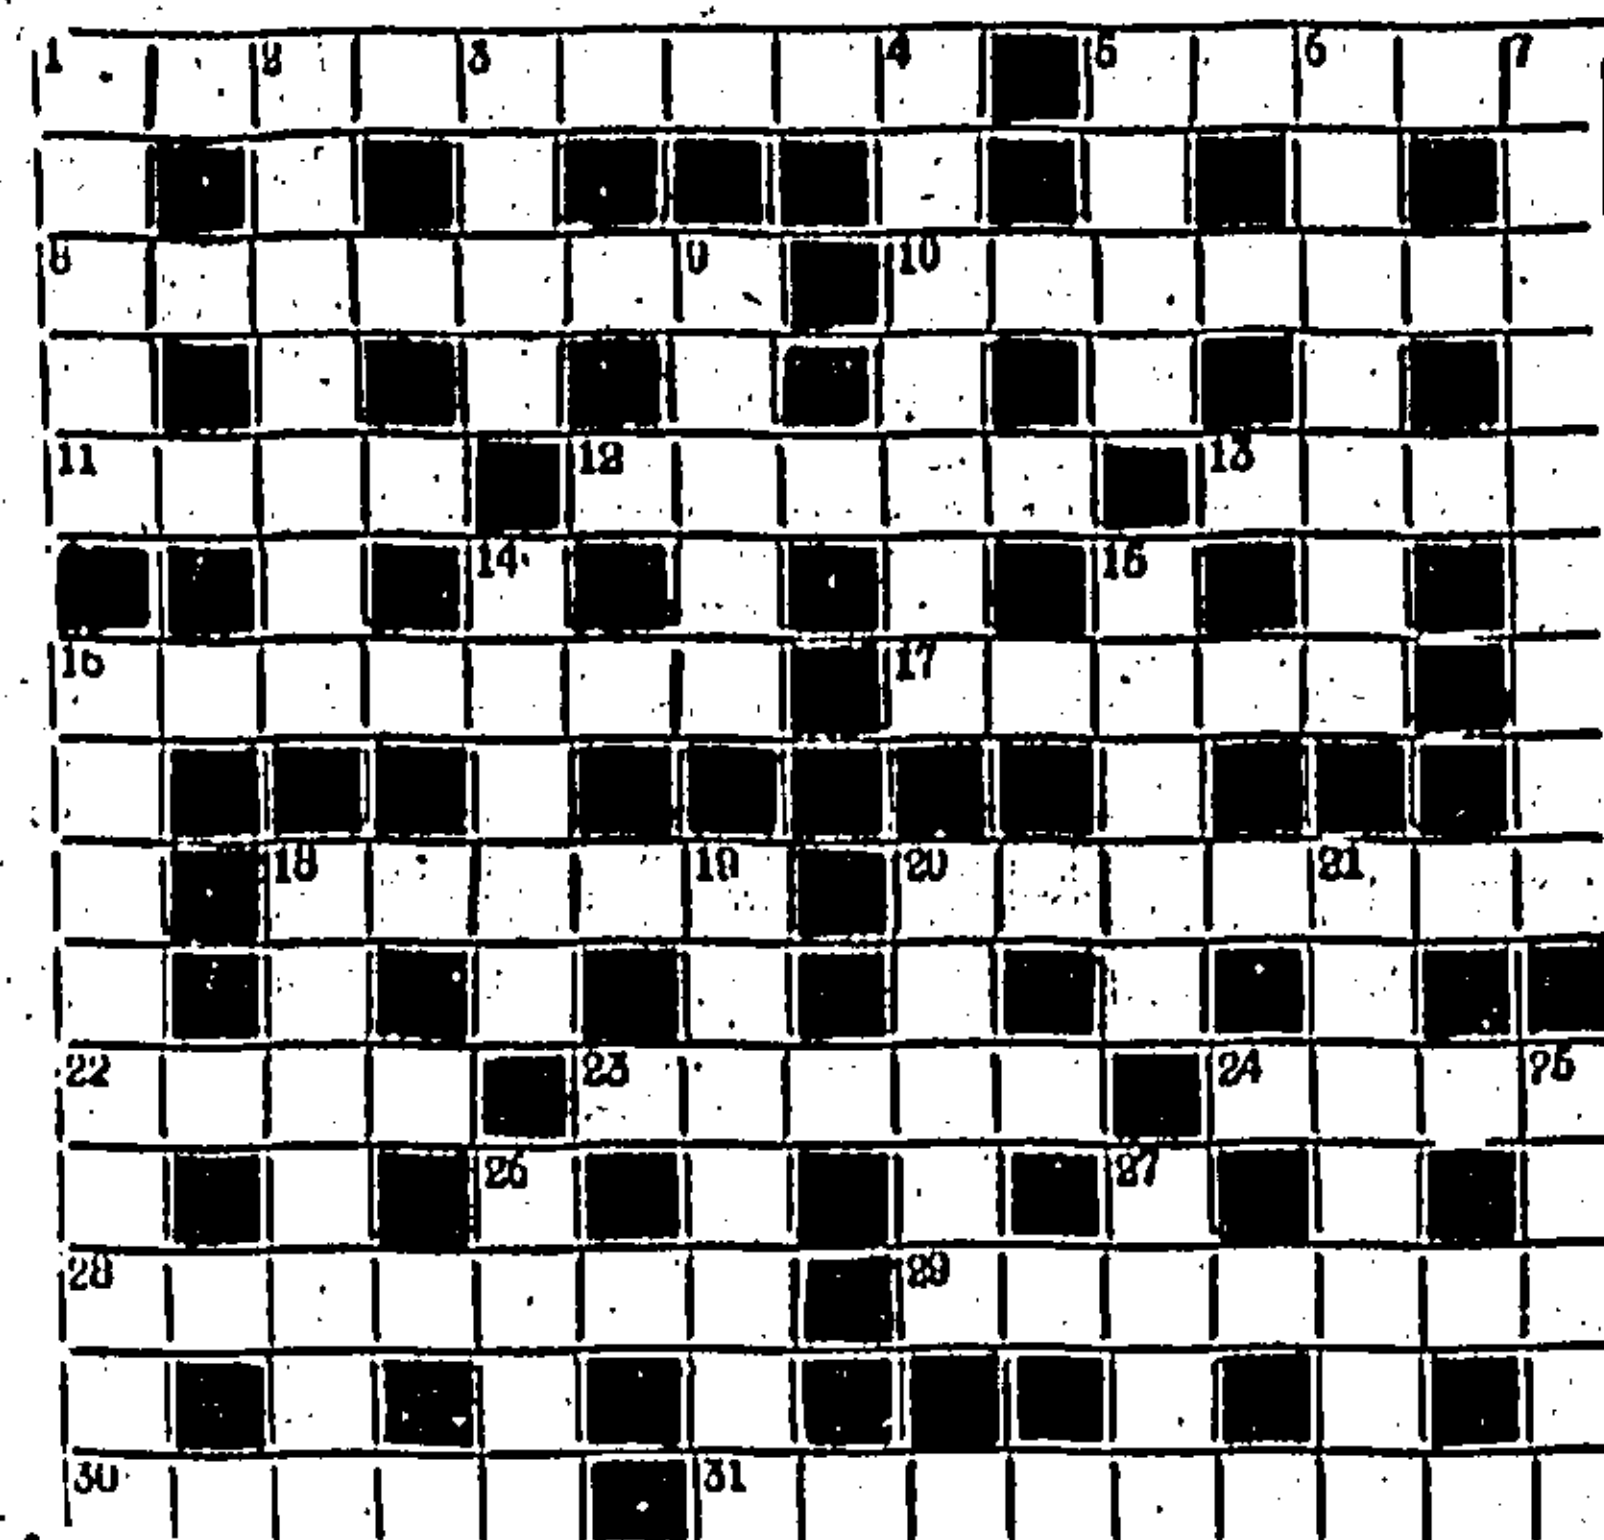

If your ankles swell when you are tired, that's a different matter. It may be due to any number of different slight bodily ailments and only your physician can analyze just what is the matter.

I am speaking to the many women and girls who spend their time pining because they haven't tapering ankles. Generally speaking, no girl ever failed to get her man just because of ankles that weren't graceful. If she did, it was only because she let her ankles get her spirits down. That is what no girl should do!

There are many things you can do to improve what you may consider a lack of beauty in your ankles. First, don't wear too light stockings, they increase the size of your legs. Second, and more important, learn to walk with such a graceful, enviable lilt as every body will envy you.

Dancers often have large legs. Learn a lesson from their unconcern. They know that the size, shape and length of their legs is never noticed. It is the whole picture they create that is beautiful, the way they move, the way they use their feet and legs. There's a lesson in them for you.

DARLING FOOL

McELLIOTT

CHAPTER XXXIII

Dan said grumpily, "Tell her I'm out."

The new maid stood in the doorway, irresolute, as Mrs. Cardigan murmured protestingly, "Dan, you simply must go! It's disgraceful!"

Frowning, he arose and went to the telephone. "Hello! Yes. Oh, I've been terribly busy. I'm afraid—" There was a pause during which Dan grimaced at the table against which he was resting. Then he said, none too graciously, "Oh, all right. Around 7? Bye. Be seeing you."

After the servant was out of earshot Mrs. Cardigan, majestic in her morning draperies of trailing lavender, presiding with elegance over the silver coffee pot, began lightly to take her son to task. Underneath her bantering tones Dan detected real earnestness.

"Danny, it's really too bad of you. Sandra asked you to that big dinner last Wednesday and you refused. She'll begin to think you're a boor." She smiled at him, holding out her hand for his cup.

"No more, thanks," Dan replied, they were putting "the works" on him—his father, his mother, all of them. He was thoroughly out of temper and fed up with the whole business, he told himself. He'd half a mind to get out—go to South America—anywhere—on a cattle boat or a fruit boat. Sandra was all right. She was a swell girl if you liked the type. Dan was just out of tune with the universe ever since he'd made that quick trip back from the west to find Monnie gone.

He'd sent a wire to her hotel in New York, having ascertained by telephoning to the News office where Miss Anstice Corey was to stay. But Monnie hadn't answered. Dan didn't understand it. That is, he didn't until Geraldine had dropped some of her nasty hints a few days later.

"I see your girl friend has gone abroad," Geraldine had crowed, waving the town paper at him.

Dan had growled, "Don't know what you're talking about." He had been furious. Geraldine had lifted her eyebrows, looking superior in that maddening way she had. Great mistake, sending that girl east to school!

"Oh, you don't?" she had drawled. "Monnie O'Dare's gone to Europe. Don't ask me how or why. Guess maybe Charles Eustace could explain."

Dan had interrupted her, his eyes flashing, fists clenched. Even if she was his sister, by the Lord Harry, he'd make her eat her words. "What do you mean?" he had barked. Geraldine had been a bit frightened. Dan's temper was not to be roused unthinkingly.

"Nothing at all except that people are saying he wants to marry her," she had said hastily, "and that he's grooming her—seeing she has certain advantages before that happens."

"Rot!" Dan had not understood clearly the blind rage that flowed over him. Why, Monnie was promised to him! She had understood that. Then in a flash he remembered the letter he had written her from the ranch. What had he said? He couldn't quite remember.

Something about having to change their plans. He had thought, of course, he would see her soon and explain to her that the precarious condition of his father's business and their dependence on Mr. Lawrence's good will made it necessary to "sit tight" for a while. Then to come back and find her gone—it was like a slap in the face, Dan told himself aggrievedly, forgetting utterly that it was he who had struck the first blow.

And now his mother was working on him, reminding him without saying so, straight out, that it was up to him to keep Sandra happy so Dad could ride along with the bank crowd, so that they wouldn't press him too hard just now.

"I'm going to the darn dinner," he observed sourly, "but don't ask me to like it."

His mother gave him her firm, toothy smile—her "clubwoman smile" Dan thought it.

"That's my grand big boy!" When Mrs. Cardigan had her own way she could be nice. She ran them all, Dan's father and all of them, with an iron hand but she smiled determinedly the while. Dan felt balked, baffled. He had to stand by Dad—for the present at least. Anyhow nothing much mattered if what Geraldine hinted about Charles and Monnie were true. He felt the old dull rage rise in him like a tide and clenched his fists, remembering—

"What's the matter, son?" Dan muttered something under his breath, choking down his toast. Yes, a fruit boat would be the thing, he was thinking. As soon as Dad's affairs were straight again he would clear out. Go away some place. They'd remember him, years after. "That Cardigan boy—lit out, didn't he? I hear he has a plantation in Santa something or other—"

Meanwhile there was Sandra's "little dinner" to attend. She was especially nice to Dan that night. Sandra in her best mood, her gracious, interested, sisterly mood, was quite delightful. Even Dan had to admit it. She didn't demand compliments. She was casual, amusing. She sang a little French song—rather naughty, she said. The other guests, a brother and sister from Cincinnati, Helen and Tad Williston, applauded loudly while Dan pretended to understand. He felt inferior and admired Sandra for her cleverness. She was a darn smart girl, no two ways about it, and very effective, with her dark hair banded demurely back. Sandra was wearing the quaintest of puffed and ruffled frocks in a new shade—hyacinth blue, she said, which gave a sea-tinge to her long-lidded green eyes and made her fair skin look dazzling.

The Willistons insisted they couldn't stop over. Tad had a director's meeting in the morning and Sandra drove them to the 11:20, with Dan in the rumble seat beside the Williston girl. She was a competent looking, rather mannish individual with coal black hair cut crisply away from a broad brow and big, strong, delicate fingered hands. Dan liked her.

Demanding a cigarette, she made a gesture toward the two in the front seat.

"Nice girl, Sandra," she said briefly. "Lots of fun."

Dan agreed, impressed in spite of himself by the Willistons and their dictum. Williston & Co. were "big people" in his father's line. He had been hearing of them since he was a child. He could not help being impressed with the fact that Helen Williston who had seen everything and been everywhere dubbed Sandra "nice" and "lots of fun."

"Can't see why she buries herself in this little town," muttered Dan's companion.

Dan had almost begun to defend Belvedere with the heat proper to a native son of the place when suddenly he remembered that he, too, was anxious to get away. He mumbled something, thinking that Miss Williston must think him a dull fellow.

On the ride home he was unusually silent. Sandra, seeming to sense his mood, talked in desultory snatches.

"Don't you want to come in and have a cigarette?" she asked as they approached the Lawrence place.

Dan roused himself. "Believe I will. Then I'll walk home. Need the exercise."

She ran the car into the big garage expertly, as she did everything, with a deft turn of the

THIRD PARTY INSURANCE

Road traffic legislation making compulsory the taking out of insurance against third party risks would seem to be a long way off as far as Hongkong is concerned. The question has been under active discussion for over a year without producing any tangible result and it seems unlikely that any will be forthcoming in the immediate future. The insurance interests raise many objections to the Government's proposals. They regard the liability of $50,000 for ordinary motor vehicles and of $100,000 for lorries as much too high, although this compares with £15,000 in England, and as onerous the deposit requirement in the Government plan. They are also at variance on other points of detail. On its side, too, the Government has several responsibilities to meet before embarking upon legislation. Obviously, it cannot content itself with making third party insurance compulsory and leaving the premium issue to the discretion of the underwriters. It is on this question that the greatest difficulties are likely to be experienced. Nothing can compel a company to issue policies at a premium which is actually unsound, while, at the same time, the public is entitled to protection if they are to be compelled to take out such insurance, as, in principle, they should. It is on the point of whether the principle should be put into practice that doubts begin to arise. Hongkong's traffic problems, notably in the matter of accidents, differ markedly from conditions in England. In favour of local legislation can be submitted the argument that with so many men of straw driving about the roads, compulsory insurance is a very necessary safeguard. Against it must come the submission that these very men, reckless as they sometimes are under present conditions, are liable to become more so in the knowledge that the insurance company will deliver them from most of the unpleasant consequences of dangerous driving. Again, insurance companies are likely to be harassed by hosts of trivial claims. It is not surprising that they hesitate before committing themselves to any decision.

NOTES OF THE DAY

The authorities have taken the complaints against the cabarets to heart, and without any warning, the Police have issued drastic orders that the "academies" shall close at midnight. Residential areas affected by the excessive noise of these places of amusement will learn of this with satisfaction. The authorities in fact are to be congratulated on this effort to meet public opinion. Nevertheless we feel that a certain amount of discrimination could have been made. There are a number of cabarets, carrying on a perfectly harmless business and offering entertainment to hundreds nightly, situated in the heart of the city. Was it necessary to bring these within the restrictions? The only reason for the curfew is to allow residents to sleep in peace. Cabarets outside of those areas should enjoy different treatment. They disturb nobody but themselves, and to close them down at midnight is to deprive numbers their chief source of entertainment.

POOR SHAKESPEARE!

Recent correspondence in the English press has revealed that many people dislike Shakespeare because they find his language difficult and out-of-date. They consequently ask that the Shakespearean drama should be turned into modern English. This very remarkable request illustrates in a striking manner the change that has come over people's attitude toward the theatre in the last fifty years. But it is not modern in the sense that Shakespeare's characters do not talk the kind of English to be heard in the City of London or on Wall Street. It is not the passage of time that has made the characters of Shakespeare talk a language different from that of ordinary men and women, but the fact that Shakespeare, deliberately caused people to discourse in a tongue more brilliant and poetical than the man in the street could ever hope to achieve in casual conversation. To ask for Shakespeare to be rewritten in "current English" is, therefore, to try to deprive him of one of his greatest virtues, his ability to make people talk, not like, but better than, ordinary men and women.

DETECTIVE STORIES

That many great men spend their leisure hours reading detective stories has long been widely known. Mr. Stanley Baldwin has never concealed his fondness for the Sherlock Holmeses and the Trents of fiction. But now it appears that some learned men spend their leisure hours in writing them. This is a development that might justifiably be made the occasion for national rejoicing. A large proportion of detective stories consists of tales that are indistinguishable from those in the crime news of the tabloid press. There is, however, a small number of detective stories whose object is far different from mere sensationalism. These emphasize, not the details of the crime committed, but the ingenuity of the problem set, the detective and the reader, and the skill with which the solution is worked out. Their interest is primarily intellectual, like the interest of a game of chess. It is in the hope that they will popularize this kind of story instead of the other that one welcomes into the detective field the learned scholars of Eton and of Oxford.

WOMEN DRIVERS

The old argument about whether men or women are better car drivers gets a new fillip in figures compiled recently by the National Safety Council. These figures show that while one out of every 21 male drivers is sooner or later involved in a crash, only one in every 86 women drivers comes to grief.

This will not settle the argument. It will go on, probably, as long as people continue to drive cars. The petulant male has a way of remembering every curious bit of driving he has ever seen a woman commit on the highway; and no matter how many figures are provided, he will always have a way of saying "Those women drivers!" that will reflect his own unconquerable feeling of superiority.

THE ANGEL THAT TROUBLED THE CONFERENCE

By E. L. ALLEN

There was quite a flutter at one of the opening sessions of the World Economic Conference, though what happened has been kept pretty secret to date. It might have been worse than it was, however. An angel dropped down the chimney, shook some soot off its wings, sat down and began to take shorthand notes! At that, the delegates all stopped talking, and whispered to the Chairman to do something about it. Thinking it advisable to be polite, he pointed out that the press was not admitted to that particular session, and would he be so good as to leave by the way he came? "Sorry," replied the intruder, "but my orders are to stay. However, if my presence inconveniences you in any way, I can make myself invisible and carry on." But the Chairman thought it would be better to see what he was doing, at any rate, so allowed him to stay.

But somehow the discussion flagged while he was there. He was taking notes all the time and it made one uncomfortable to think where those notes might be handed in afterwards. But what was to be done about it? One of the delegates had a bright idea. "Mr. Chairman," he said, clearing his throat, "I should like to suggest that we ask our distinguished visitor to address us." Everybody agreed; it would certainly stop him from taking those awful notes. But the angel was of a shy, unassuming disposition, he protested that he knew nothing at all about economics, and was only there as deputy for the Recording Angel (several members shuddered visibly at this point) during his weekly day off. Still they insisted, so he advanced to the table, and began:

ALL VERY GOOD!

"Mr. President and gentlemen, let me begin by relieving your minds on one point. You think the business of the Recording Angel is to keep a record of your faults. Not at all. They do that in hell, we in heaven know that it is your virtues which cause most of your troubles. What I felt in listening to your arguments just now was that they were all sound. You are all so wonderfully in the right, we could scarcely do better ourselves. For the British situation, the British policy is the ideal one; if I were a citizen of the United States, I should think that President Roosevelt had the goods; and for the gold-producing countries, what the gold-producing countries stand for is just plain common-sense. From your national points of view, you are all right: what I don't quite see is why you should have any national points of view at all! We don't have them in heaven, you know."

As I said before, I know nothing about economics. But we angels, seeing that we live for ever and have good memories, get to know quite a lot about history. As far as I can see, ever since you started this wonderful economic system you are so anxious about now, you've been so fond of crises that I cannot imagine how you would live without them. You must enjoy them, otherwise why do you make each new one bigger than the one which went before? Suppose you do pilot this old earth of yours to something tolerable again, what is to guarantee that it won't go to your head and produce that same queer business of booms followed by crashes and crashes in which you wait for the next boom? I don't question your ability to restore prosperity, gentlemen, but excuse my frankness—I do doubt your ability to make a proper use of it when you have it.

A WORLD TOUR.

There's one more point, if I'm not taking up too much time, Mr. Chairman. I took a world-tour between 10 and 11 yesterday morning; we angels can get round the world and see a lot in that time! Now I come to think of it, I don't remember seeing anything of world-prices, the gold standard, the balance of trade, and other things of which you have been speaking. Of course, your sunlight is very poor, so I may have missed them. But there were some things I did see. In one place, I saw a mother struggling to clothe five children on the "dole," as you call it. In another, I saw a father of 50, with twenty years to live and no chance of any work in them, trying to bring up his children to be useful members of the community. And in another place I came across a gang of bare-foot urchins playing outside a shoe factory with a notice on the walls, saying it was "closed for want of orders." It seems to me that these are all "experts" in their way; don't you think you might co-opt them on some of your Committees?

But at that point someone rose in a hurry to propose a world-embargo on the import of angels. It was carried unanimously, and the Conference got down to business.

21 YEARS AGO

Extracts From the "Telegraph" Files

The following extracts are from the Hongkong Telegraph for the week ended July 6, 1912.

The rate of the dollar on demand was 1/11 13/16.

Li Hon-hung, charged with the attempted murder of Sir Henry May, the Governor, was committed for trial.

An attempt to poison a European was reported to the Police. The victim collapsed after eating his soup at an evening meal.

Allegations by a correspondent that the Press were suppressing reports of burglaries and other crimes was denied. It was pointed out that the scarcity of the reports was due to lack of information at Police Headquarters.

Commodore Eyres left for Home, and was succeeded by Commodore Anstruther, C.M.G.

BULLS AND INNARDS

From the Office Butts

Another definition of the Economic Conference, "Money Talks".

One thing about nudists. They can't laugh up their sleeve!

Who says that people are too thrifty these days? Only recently MacWhirter went out to his club and spent the evening!

With local Gold-diggers it's a case of "Presents makes the heart grow fonder!"

This week's simile. As keen as a starved mosquito at a nudist camp.

Looks as though there will be a lot of blasting on Harlech Road.

Many a father with a head for figures has a son with an eye for them.

The difference between an indoor and an outdoor arial is exactly ten bucks per annum.

An advertisement states: "Live salesmen wanted." Dead men, of course, tell no tales.

It is asserted that "London is cheaper to-day." Nevertheless, it will have to drop considerably lower before we consider buying it.

A Diet specialist at home declares that broad beans are particularly beneficial. The trouble with us out here is that broad beans are not abroad.

It is stated that more money was spent in the Colony on tobacco last year than on rice. One way to balance the trade would be to give cumshaw rice puddings at Christmas.

The song of the surf-boarder. There's no place like foam!

One way to make the dollar go up. Take a ride in the Peak Tram!

"Hell Below." This is not, of course, a Peak reference to Kowloon.

Cabarets close at midnight. Some people won't be satisfied however, until cabarets are killed altogether. They'll be able to say let her "R.I.P." then.

Ever since he received a letter from a well-wisher who signed herself "Alice," Eddie Kelly has been going around the office whistling "Alice, Where Art Thou?"

Robert MacWhirter is the only man in Hongkong who is complaining about the reduction in the price of petrol. He says he filled his tank up the day before the reduction came into force.

The Chamber of Commerce has not, it is understood, adopted as its motto "Pull for the Foreshore, lads!"

Edward Kelly and his headache throw a party last night. This morning he woke up and found he had two headaches.

Hongkong beer on the market soon. Near beer.

Attention is being drawn to the exquisite manner of Chinese bandits. It seems that some people are simply carried away by them.

Edward Kelly owes his tailor for everything he wears except his hat. He's up to his neck in debt, as it were.

A certain stenographer we know is so keen on turning men's heads that she always sticks the stamps on her envelopes upside down.

It is estimated that 13,766 European residents of Hongkong remarked this week: "It's hot to-day."

"I've taken that man's name in vain," as the gold digger said when she discovered that her new husband was really quite a poor man.

Every picture tells a story, but the trouble with these American pictures is that they always tell the same story.

"Oh, John, you must ask Mr. Watt to teach you some card tricks, so we will be invited out more."

KARL MARX— MATHEMATICIAN

DISCOVERIES OF SOME IMPORTANT MSS.

NEW TREATISE

Moscow.
Karl Marx Socialism.
Everyone thinks of Socialism when Marx's name is mentioned, but works about to be published will show him not only as Marx the Socialist but also in a new light—as Marx the Mathematician.

They are manuscripts written by Marx and dealing with higher mathematics which have lain for scores of years in the archives of the German social-democratic party. Recently, however, the Marx-Engels-Lenin Institute in Moscow obtained the MSS., and is shortly to publish them.

Marx began to write about mathematics during the last years of his life. M.P. Lafargue, the scientist, says in his memoirs that during his wife's last illness, Marx wrote a work on infinitesimal values, which is described as very important.

Marx's manuscript deals with algebra, geometry and differential calculus. The MSS. consists of resumes of text-books which he studied, and various independent works.

The independent works are in the shape of letters addressed to his closest friend—Friedrich Engels, where he states his own point of view on the basic conceptions and formulae of differential calculus.

Engels, in his letters published in 1932, says: "Yesterday I took courage to study your mathematical manuscripts. Accept my compliments in this regard. The thing is as clear as daylight so that one cannot sufficiently wonder why mathematicians insist so much on shrouding it in mystery."—Reuter.

against cotton goods which had now to pay from fifty to a hundred per cent. in duties.

The action ostensibly was retaliation against Japan, but apparently because China was bound by the most-favoured nation clause the infliction of hardship upon Japan had led to the infliction of an intolerable hardship on British cotton and other trades.

HONGKONG LOSSES.

The speaker referred to the alarming falling off of trade between Hongkong and China owing to the increased tariff.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister replying, said he was unable to express at the present time, the Colonial Office's attitude towards the treaties. They were perfectly prepared to take whatever action in regard to them that trade interests and the Board of Trade considered to be the most convenient course.

He said there were great legal difficulties in regard to the Congo Basin Treaty and the debate concluded.—Reuter.

KENYA GOLD.

Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister, referring to the Kenya gold discoveries during the debate said that new areas were being developed. An Ordinance of a drastic kind, which the gold mining community welcomed, ensured that undesirable persons should not prospect in those reserves. Liberal compensation for temporary disturbance was being paid to the natives.

Dealing with Palestine, he said the British Government concurred with the decisions of High Commissioner's tribunal of inquiry regarding the settlement of displaced Arabs.

PALESTINE LOAN.

It was proposed that the Palestine Government's extensive programme of public works and the re-settlement of the displaced Arabs should to a large extent be financed by a loan of £2,000,000. The British Government were satisfied that without drawing on the exchequer balances, the financial resources of Palestine were adequate to provide for the service of the loan and to afford full security for the capital.

It was proposed that the loan should receive the formal guarantee of the British Government. The works will include Halfa water supply and drainage schemes, hydrographic survey and the improvement of the roads and supplies.—British Wireless.

CUSTOMS OFFICER DIES IN SHANGHAI

MR. G. MOORCROFT

Shanghai, July 14.
Mr. George Moorcroft, of the outdoor staff of the Chinese Maritime Customs, died suddenly in Shanghai to-day.

Mr. Moorcroft, a boat officer, was stationed at Kowloon up to very recently. When his health became affected by the Hongkong climate, he sought and was granted a transfer to Ningpo.

He landed in Shanghai on Thursday morning and died the same night. On Thursday afternoon he visited the Glen Line Building and behaved so curiously, that he was taken to hospital. He died 20 minutes later. It is thought to be a case of heat stroke.

Twelve years ago, Mr. Moorcroft was engaged as a Customs officer in London and came out to China. He has been stationed at various ports up and down the coast, the last 18 months having been spent in Kowloon.

Deceased was a single man. He enjoyed great popularity among his colleagues in the Customs service. He was about 33 years of age at the time of his death.

An inquest was opened before the British Coroner to-day and was adjourned to a later date.—Our Own Correspondent.

MRS. CLIFFORD MILLS. Death Of A Well-Known Playwright.

DAUGHTER IN HONGKONG.

London, July 14.
It is revealed that Mrs. Clifford Mills, the playwright, who died in London on July 2, has a daughter who is the wife of an Army Major in Hongkong.—Our Own Correspondent.

It is understood that the daughter referred to is Mrs. R. Shillington, wife of Major Shillington, of the R.A.O.C., stationed at Hongkong.

The late Mrs. Clifford Mills wrote a number of successful plays, one of these, "Where the Rainbow Ends," which was written in collaboration with Mr. Reginald Owen, the actor, being the most noted. Another successful play of hers was "The Man from Hongkong."

The great success of "Where the Rainbow Ends" (originally written as a fairy play to amuse the daughter now in Hongkong) hardly needs recalling, as it has run for many years as a much-appreciated offering of the Christmas pantomime season.

YEN ASKS BRITAIN
TO CO-OPERATE.

LORD CECIL ON JAPAN'S POLICY

London, July 14.

The League Assembly report on the Manchurian issue will go down in history as one of the most important documents in the fight for international peace, decency and justice, declared Dr. W.W. Yen, one of China's delegates to the London Economic Conference and to Geneva, when he delivered a speech to-day to a luncheon meeting of the League of Nations Union.

Japanese aggression, he said, had upset the Far East balance of power, which, unless it were reestablished, would entail the gravest developments on the Pacific.

Obviously the past and present military activities in Manchuria and North China had been most disturbing to world peace, he said. China was not in a position to exercise all the rights to which she was entitled under Article 16 of the World Covenant. And for other reasons, she was not in a position to express her feelings of righteous indignation and resentment.

Not Resigned

Inaction, however, did not for a moment suggest that China intended to accept the fait accompli or that she was resigned to the situation, conceived in perfidy and created by violence, and considered by the civilised world incompatible with the provisions of international law.

The measures which China had to adopt were, firstly, to put pressure upon Japan to accept the Assembly report; secondly, China must take steps to strengthen her position economically and politically, in order to enable her to prolong her resistance against the Japanese.

He was glad to notice, he said, the recent change of British attitude towards China and her relations with Japan. It must be more and more apparent that, apart from the question of supporting the League decision, it was in Great Britain's interest, especially during the present economic crisis, to pay attention to the possibilities in China in respect to marketing and investment.

Trade Opening.

Remarking that her trade with China was only two per cent of her total foreign business, and stressing the need for an increase, Dr. Yen said that the development of Sino-British commercial relations would not only result in good profit for Britain but would enable Britain to execute one phase of the recommendations of the League report.

Dr. Yen referred to the wonderful hospitality which had been shown to the delegates to the World Economic Conference, saying that it had created a lasting impression.

Lord Cecil Speaks.

Lord Cecil, presiding, said the real problem of the Sino-Japanese dispute was whether international disputes should be settled by law or war. Since 1931 it was Japan who had been the lawbreaker. Moreover, she had levied war against a whole comity of nations. If there were such a thing as international high treason, he would say Japan was guilty of it. Those taking Japan's part should reflect that it meant sympathy with a breach of the very foundations of all international progress.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S WARNING.

FORMAL PROTEST OF ARMISTICE BREACH

Peking, July 14.
If General Fong Yu-hsiang continues his invasion of Dolotov, which constitutes a flagrant violation of the Sino-Japanese Truce, the Japanese government will take whatever measures they deem fit to force his adherence to the terms of the Tangku armistice.

This was the purpose of a strong protest at Peking, made behalf of the Japanese authorities by Lieutenant General Saito, military attaché to the Chinese government.

QUIST AND TURNBULL NO MATCH FOR HUGHES AND PERRY

PERRY BELIEVED TO HAVE STRAINED
HIS RIGHT SHOULDER

SURPRISING SELECTION OF AUSTRALIAN PAIR

London, July 14.
Only 2,000 people were present at Wimbledon to-day to see Britain take an important lead in the Davis Cup match with Australia, when G. P.
Hughes and Fred Perry
beat P. D. Turnbull and A. Quist in the doubles by three sets
to one.

The scores were

7-5, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

The tie produced some patchy tennis. Hughes was guilty of numbers of weak returns in the rallies, yet served better than ever before and scored several ace with shots of amazing speed.

It was left to Perry to accomplish the major share of the work.
He rose to the occasion in great style intercepting with powerful point winning smashes.

He was much better than Hughes, who was unaccountably unreliable beyond his service strokes.

STRAINED SHOULDERS?

The extra efforts thrown on Perry, however, had its effect, and he was noticed to be repeatedly rubbing his right shoulder.

It is believed that Perry strained it as a result of the severe exertions.

Quist and Turnbull never settled down as a combination. They were continually penalised for foot-faulting.

QUIST SHINES.

Quist stood out head and shoulders above his partner. He lobbed and smashed like a champion, but was forced to play too long a hand to allow his work to be given its fullest value or effect.

The first eleven games of the match went with service, but thereafter services were broken through by both pairs.—Reuter.

Quite the most extraordinary feature was the decision of Mr.
Youdale, the Australian manager, in selecting Quist and Turnbull for the doubles.

WIMBLEDON INFLUENCE.

That he was influenced by their display against Vines and Gledhill at Wimbledon is obvious. On the other hand Davis cup records this year, as well as those of tournaments tend to show that the Crawford-Quist combination is much stronger.

To put Turnbull and Quist against Hughes and Perry was like playing into the English-men's hands.

Possibly Mr. Youdale wanted to make certain that Crawford should be thoroughly rested for his singles to-day, although his chief concern would appear to be Vivian McGrath, who will have to play very much better against Austin than he did against Perry if Australia are not to be beaten.

IN STRONG POSITION.

Britain are undoubtedly in a very strong position at the moment. It is a little disconcerting to hear of Perry's shoulder injury, for he needs to be fit against Crawford if he is to stand the slightest chance of winning.

But Britain's chief interest lies in Austin. He has the better chance of winning the tie, and frankly it will be surprising if he loses to McGrath.

This afternoon's matches are:

SINGLES.

H. W. Austin v. V. McGrath
Fred Perry v. J. Crawford.

Hughes and Perry.

F.A. RULES FIASCO

ARMY RETIRE IN CONFUSION

WHOLESALE DEFEAT OF AMENDMENTS

Pressure on space prevents a lengthy survey to-day of the interesting problems debated and created at last night's annual meeting of the Hongkong Football Association.

It more or less covers the ground to say that the Army, metaphorically speaking, retired in confusion.

Only one of the proposed vital changes to League rules was adopted, that of levelling up referees in all divisions to the $5 standard, which will probably involve the Association in an increased expenditure of some $1,500.

BAN REJECTED.

The proposal ban upon army players representing civilian clubs and upon players from outside the Colony participating in local football were unhesitatingly rejected.

The antagonism aroused by the submission of the League proposals, although it was not exhibited in acrimonious discussion, had the rather unfortunate effect of causing challenges to quite desirable changes of rules affecting the Constitution of the Association, largely, it seemed, because the proposals came from the Army.

As a result, the rule establishing new Council representation failed to secure the requisite majority vote of two-thirds and was declared lost.
The rule would have permitted each senior Club to nominate a representative on the Council. It was resisted because it was contended that it would have permitted too many Army representatives!

It was a very real misfortune.
The proposed constitution was eminently desirable. The event merely illustrates that someone should begin making a new study in tactics.—"Wanderer."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The following officers were elected:
President.—Sir Thomas Southern.
Vice-Presidents.—Dr. R. H. Kolowall, Mr. H. R. Hancock and Capt.
C. E. Elliot-Heywood.

Chairman of the Council.—Major
C. M. Mannors.

Members of the Council.—Messrs.
J. Ralston, J. Barnes, J. D. Bush, T. B.
Mitchell, James, G. T. May, Capt.
Williams and Capt. Fleetwood.
Messrs. H. J. Lee, A. Goldenberg and J. S. Logan tied for the last place with 10 votes each. It was decided to leave the selection of the last member to the first meeting of the Council.

Before the meeting terminated, Mr.
James proposed a vote of thanks to the Sports Club for the loan of their premises for the meeting.
Mr. Ralston also proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman for so able and able a meeting.

Turnbull and Quist.

MAMAK HOCKEY TOURNEY

ANNUAL MEETING DECIDES TO CARRY ON FOR ANOTHER YEAR

The fate of the Mamak Hockey Tournament was for a time in doubt last night, owing entirely to misunderstandings of the functions of the recently formed Hongkong Hockey Association.

It was decided, however, that the tournament should be run another year.

The fate of the Mamak Hockey Tournament was for a time in doubt last night, owing entirely to misunderstandings of the functions of the recently formed Hongkong Hockey Association.

It was decided, however, that the tournament should be run another year.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. O. E. White, chairman of the Tournament, and among those present were: Mr. S. S. Mamak, Mr. E. A.
Kemp (Hon. Secretary Hongkong Hockey Association), Messrs. P. J.
Barlow, (Hon. Assistant Secretary, and R.A.S.C.), A. W. Kerton-Baughan (R.A.M.C.), Singar Singh (Radio
S.C.), Jahn-Dad (K.I.T.C.), R. H.
Wong, and F. Wong (St.
Andrew's), R. C. Reed (Ingenieur),
N. A. E. Mackay (hon. Treasurer Mamak Tournament), J. May
(German Club), W. Brokenshire
(H.M.S. Tamar), Capt. J. J. Lyons
(Army and 3/9 Jats), Major H. M.
McIntyre, M.C., (Royal Artillery),
Sergeant Allen (Police), C. Mullins
(R.E.).

In opening the meeting, the chairman said it seemed that the Tournament would have to carry on without a trophy but, if they had the Army and Navy they had many more opportunities of games. He knew there were certain clubs which would have preferred to retain the trophy but under the circumstances, and until such time as the Tournament obtained some sort of recognition from the local Association, they must carry on as they were.

It had been intimated to him that the Navy clubs which entered this year were entering again with possibly some additional clubs, and he took the opportunity of saying that the Services had not only been of great assistance in their games, but in co-operation with other teams in obtaining grounds and in the general running of the tournament.

CASH COMMENT.
The treasurer's report, showing a cash balance in hand of $482, was adopted, though comment was routed on figures showing that though the Tournament paid $40 ground fees to the U.R. Club for the season, they had actually played on it only nine times.

The chairman explained that the ground was hired at the usual rate and the pitch was not used often because sometimes clubs preferred to play elsewhere or because rain intervened.

Correspondence with the Hongkong Hockey Association was reported by the Secretary. In reply to an enquiry, Mr. Kemp had written that his Association was an accomplished fact. The Association was further seeking affiliation with the controlling body and would, therefore, have to abide by its rules as regards trophy play. There was, however, nothing in the rules prohibiting competitive hockey.

Mr. Kemp then told the meeting that as far as he was aware, his Association was running a tournament for affiliated clubs.

MOTION-TWICE PUT.
The chairman said he had intended to suggest that as the members of the Hongkong Hockey Association would probably also join the Tournament, they might run it in two sections this year.

and 95-5) on first innings.
Surrey (282-8 dec. and 47-5) beat Somerset

West Indies (174-7 dec.) drew with Lancashire (39-2).
Harrow (237) Eton (91-3) close of play.

CRICKET THROUGHOUT COUNTRY AFFECTED BY RAIN

London, July 14.
Rain throughout the country seriously interrupted the county cricket programme and decision in all games bar one was confined to first innings.

Once again Verity, revelling in the state of the wicket, accomplished an amazing feat. During the match he took 17 wickets for 81 runs. His full figures for each innings were:

| | O. | M. | R. | W. |
|-------------|----|----|----|----|
| 1st Innings | 27 | 10 | 47 | 8 |
| 2nd Innings | 14 | 3 | 44 | 9 |

Kent had an extremely lucky escape from defeat when they met Worcester. The Worcester batmen were in dazzling form.
The Nawab of Pataudi, who learnt his cricket in the Kent nursery under the tuition of Frank Woolley, made merry at the expense of Freeman and Co., hitting up 224 and keeping his wicket intact until the innings was closed at 477 for 2. Gibbons contributed 124 and Nichol 109 not out.

RAIN THE SAVIOUR.

Only rain saved Kent. In their first visit to the wicket they hit up 147, Unding Jackson, who captured 8 for 87, almost unplayable.
Following on they lost a further five wickets for 97 runs. Then came the rain.

Notts too were in rather a bad way against Gloucester, but were helped by the weather which cut play short. Another century by Hammond saw Gloucester total 368 and in response Notts scored 108 and followed on. Their second attempt realised 141 for 4 wickets, and they were still 119 runs in arrears.

VENTURESOME SUSSEX.

Sussex tried valiantly to force
the issue against Hampshire, making a sporting second innings declaration of 81 for 0. This left Hampshire to score 230 to win and when stumps were drawn they had made 147 for 3.

The remainder of the matches were fairly featureless. The annual Harrow v. Eton game started at Lord's and saw an interesting and even day's play. Harrow, thanks chiefly to Pawle, who in scoring 96 was unlucky to miss his century, compiled 237. Holmes did some clever bowling for Eton, sending four men back for 26 runs.
Eton batted well under difficult conditions and at the close had put 91 on the board for the loss of three wickets.

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (or disease) to which many people are given but few really understand. It is simply weakness, a break down in the working of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be the cause (they are almost innumerable), its symptoms are much the same.
The more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weakness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is essential in all such cases is increased vitality—energy, which feelings, and in the night, towards the day this

These Foolish White Men!

PUZZLE NATIVE MURDERER

Sydney.

With a puzzled frown on his brow, Donni Marul, a young native of the Wai Wal tribe, has gone from Port Moresby Court to serve five years hard labour.

Donni's brother, Timoni, a month earlier, set out to kill someone, no one in particular. He merely desired to possess the homicidal emblem. The easiest victim appeared to be an old woman of Galle (a small village in the South Coast of Papua) who screamed when attacked and brought several of her relations to the spot before Timoni could complete his task. Timoni fled, but was captured subsequently by native police and sentenced to a year's hard labour by the white man.

Donni brooded over his brother's fate, for which he blamed the old woman and her relations. The incident called for vengeance. He crept into Galle and clubbed to death the old woman's brother. Now he has to serve five years imprisonment, because the fool white man once again failed to understand.—Reuter.

Abolish The Tax Collectors

NOVEL IDEA FROM INSTANBUL

Istanbul

Abolish tax collectors. Make people go to the Town Hall to pay their taxes, and send a squad of drummers to beat drums outside their houses if they don't pay.

This is a novel suggestion which is being considered here.

In practice it would work as follows:

If anyone were three months late paying his taxes, six men would visit his house. Unless the money were immediately forthcoming, they would beat their drums loudly outside his door for one hour.

After three days, should the taxes still not have been paid, bailiffs would be entitled to force an entry, and seize and sell the furniture.

There is, however, some opposition to such drastic methods of collecting taxes:

1. Many tax-collectors would be out of jobs.

2. Neighbours may object to their peace being disturbed by continual drumming.

3. It is also asked whether the authorities possess sufficient drums?—Reuter.

telescope, which is fitted with a sixty-inch reflecting mirror, is able to bring an object two thousand times nearer the eye.

Dr. J. Paraskavopoulos, Director of the Observatory, explaining the advantages of the new telescope, said, "The distance we expect to reach is incomprehensible in terms of miles. Scientifically expressed we expect to reach distances, which light, with its speed of 186,000 miles a second, would take more than 200 million years to span."

The sixty-inch reflecting telescope can photograph a light of one candle-power at any distance up to 4,500 miles.—Reuter.

Pepsodent polishes teeth as it removes film

This double-action tooth paste brings a rapid improvement in the appearance of your teeth

SOME tooth pastes will remove film, but they may harm tooth enamel. Others are perfectly safe, but they may fail to remove film.

The difference between Pepsodent and most other tooth pastes lies in its new cleansing and polishing material. This material is twice as soft as the cleansing and polishing materials commonly used in tooth pastes. That is why Pepsodent accomplishes the three most important things necessary to keep teeth clean and sparkling.

It removes film—completely.

It polishes the surfaces of the teeth to a sparkling brilliance.

It cleanses and polishes without scratching delicate tooth enamel.

BABY'S health may be impaired by constant change of diet. Using milks of unknown origin amounts to that. They differ in constitution, according to their source and thus tend to cause digestive disturbance.

You can be sure of giving baby the best and freshest Devonshire milk by giving him "Ambrosia"—milk from healthy Devonshire herds—milk purified and dried in Devonshire dairies as soon as it comes from the meadow.

"Ambrosia" contains all the important vitamins. It is many times purer and more easily digested than Grade "A" milk—yet costs less. Hospitals, Clinics and Doctors prescribe "Ambrosia." It is the safest and most delicious milk for Baby, Mother and every nursing purpose.

ON BEING VULGAR

GERMANS PUT IN QUANDARY

THE NEW CULT

Berlin.

"Kitsch" is a useful German word meaning all that is vulgar, cheap sentimental, and commercial in the arts.

It has recently been appropriated by Dr. Goebbels, the young man responsible for enlightening the German people as to the aims and nature of National-Socialism, to describe the "Vulgarisation of the National Revival," and its exploitation for commercial purposes.

But while he and his ministry of Propaganda have set themselves the task of stamping out these tendencies, they are finding it very difficult to draw the line between "vulgarisation" and "loyal" enthusiasm.

For instance, a government which has set such value on flags and flag-flying can hardly forbid men to sell paper swastika flags and "windmills" to children on the streets.

Similarly, sets of toy troopers, replacing the lead soldiers of a non-Nazi generation, have long been manufactured and sold in official Nazi supply depots.

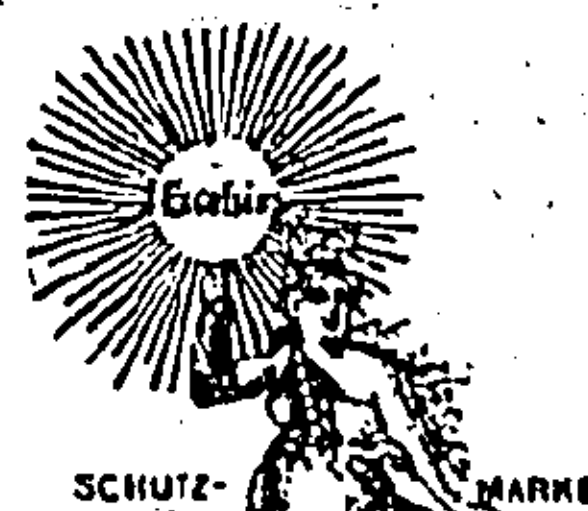

The seal of official disapproval, has, however, definitely been set on "The Game of the National Revival"—a sort of "Snakes and Ladders" with "Reds" for snakes.

NATIONAL "KITSCH"

After the instances of "National Kitsch" which are to be banned include Frankfurter sausages in the form of a Swastika, cakes of the same shape, fountain pens with Hitler's portrait, pencils with the Horst-Wessel song engraved on them, black-white-and-red ash trays and paper serviettes, Swastika lamp-shades, and even—toilette paper decorated with a Swastika.

The portraits in Metal, alabaster, porcelain, and so on, which are lightly tolerated by the Kings of other lands are considered a "Slur on Germany" when Hitler's likeness is thus offered for sale. The wrath of officialdom has been incurred by a butcher of East Prussia, who exhibited at a Trade Fair a portrait of Hitler in Lard, recalling that of the Prince of Wales in butter at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.—Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

The fairies of the Inkes were certainly good to little Maureen O'Sullivan, until only a couple of years ago running to school with her books, and to miss on Sunday with no thought of the stage, the screen or the gay outside world.

Then John McCormack, the great Irish singer, went to Ireland to make a picture. He wanted an Irish girl for his lead, and more than one hundred lasses responded to the call. None of them would do. They lacked the personality, the beauty or the warm charm that he wanted for his heroine.

Then on the road one day, Maureen O'Sullivan drifted across his path. Somewhere off in the bog the lopers must have laughed, for no sooner did John see little Maureen than he said, "There's the girl!"

And that's how Maureen O'Sullivan happened to go to Hollywood where she scored such a hit that she has been busy ever since. Now she is in the leading role of "The Silver Lining," which comes to the King's Theatre next week.

This is Alan Crosland's first independent production and he has been permitted full rein, which is qualified in the picture.

John Warburton, new leading man in pictures, Betty Compson, Mary Doran, Montagu Love and a score of other screen players illuminate the brilliant cast.

"The Silver Lining" is an original story by Hal Conklin.

"Hell Below"

History and fiction, unlike Kipling's proverbial East and West, can be made to meet. The screen has produced history true to fact, and at the same time has injected enough fiction to make a gripping and compelling piece of entertainment out of "Hell Below," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Big Parade of the Ocean," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

It shows real submarines in action, torpedoing destroyers, blowing up a fort, bottling up a harbour, and executing sensational manoeuvres at the bottom of the ocean. There are vivid scenes of a battle fleet in an artillery duel with a fortified city, and amazing undersea action in which a submarine dodges depth bombs, is later rescued after being seemingly doomed at the floor of the sea, and participates in a varied series of thrilling adventures.

These incidents, all true to history, were filmed with actual submarines, reproducing exactly what happened during the World War off the coast of Italy. Before this background of hair-raising thrills, there is the fiction—the romance in which Robert Montgomery, as the submarine lieutenant and Madge Evans, as the daughter of his commander, figure.

Montgomery gives a new and more serious type of portrayal as the young lieutenant who is torn between love and duty. His work is at all times arresting, and permeated with a warmth that makes a flesh-and-blood individual out of his characterization.

Walter Huston is flawless as the submarine's stern commander, and Jimmy Durante teams with Eugene Pallette in hilarious comedy sequences that punctuate the thrills. Madge Evans is charming to look at and poignantly dramatic as the heroine, and the talented young Robert Young gives further evidence of his potential stardom in a small but unforgettable part.

"Private Jones"

All the laugh, tears, comedy and tragedy of the olive drab doughboys days are showing at the Central Theatre for the last time to-night, when Universal's "Private Jones," featuring the inimitable Leo Tracy.

Tracy, who has gained unusual popularity through his recent fast-talking characterizations which live on the screen, as no other recent actor has been able to make them do, plays the title role in the widely discussed play which was especially revamped for the screen. Originally presented at the exclusive Hollywood Writers' Club by Richard Schayer, Universal scenario chief, the play attracted so much attention that it was re-written into a screenplay.

The picture is said to provide the dynamic actor with his greatest role since coming from sensational success on Broadway to Hollywood. He is supported by Gloria Stuart, Bertone Churchill, Russell Gleson, Emma Dunn and Donald Cook in other leading roles under the expert translation of Director Russell Mack.

Loretta Young gained high laurels with the late Lon Chaney in "Laugh Clown Laugh," with John Barrymore in "The Man From Blankley," and was later in many important productions. Her latest picture is the Columbia picture "Platinum Blonde," which is showing next week at the Queen's. Others in the cast are Jean Harlow, Robert Williams, Louise Closser Hale and Halliwell Hobbs. It is a Frank Capra production.

"White Zombie"

Hollywood has produced a character portrayal so realistic that when it was flashed upon the screen it scared the life out of the actress who portrayed it.

The portrayal is in "White Zombie," now showing at the King's Theatre, and it was done by Madge Bellamy.

The story of "White Zombie" concerns itself with sorcery in Haiti. Miss Bellamy, in the story, is placed under a spell by the leader of the Zombies, a sinister sorcerer, and after she is pronounced dead by her family physician and interred in a large mausoleum, her body is disinterred by the Zombies and taken away to a mountain retreat. There the sorcerer brings her back to life, but only permits her the animation of a sleep-walker.

Miss Bellamy went through these scenes one morning, and late that wheel. Dan helped her out, conscious of the fine, faint scent which always hovered about her beautifully groomed hair and skin. Sandra was—well—perfection, in her way. She slipped her cool hand into the crook of his arm. Her voice was very soft. "Worried about something, Danny?"

It was nice to know someone cared. His mother now—his mother was too busy, too absorbed in her own plans, to care in the least what Dan's private feelings were. And Monnie—well, she didn't love him any more. That was finished. You closed the door on things like that.

"Bored," Dan admitted in a troubled voice. "Wish I could light out, go some place where things happen."

"Ah, don't I know that feeling!" Sandra was all sweet sympathy.

Suddenly the girl came very close. Cool, fragrant and golden, she stood looking at him, smiling. "Can't you tell me all about it, Danny boy?" she asked.

The man hesitated. Almost before he knew what was happening Sandra was in his arms.

day she and other members of the company went into the projection room to look at the result. That part of the sequence in which she is seen lying in a coffin was flashed upon the screen and, after taking one look, Miss Bellamy let out a piercing scream and bolted the door. And nothing could prevail upon her to return.

Miss Bellamy is a convert to cremation.

By W. E. McKenney

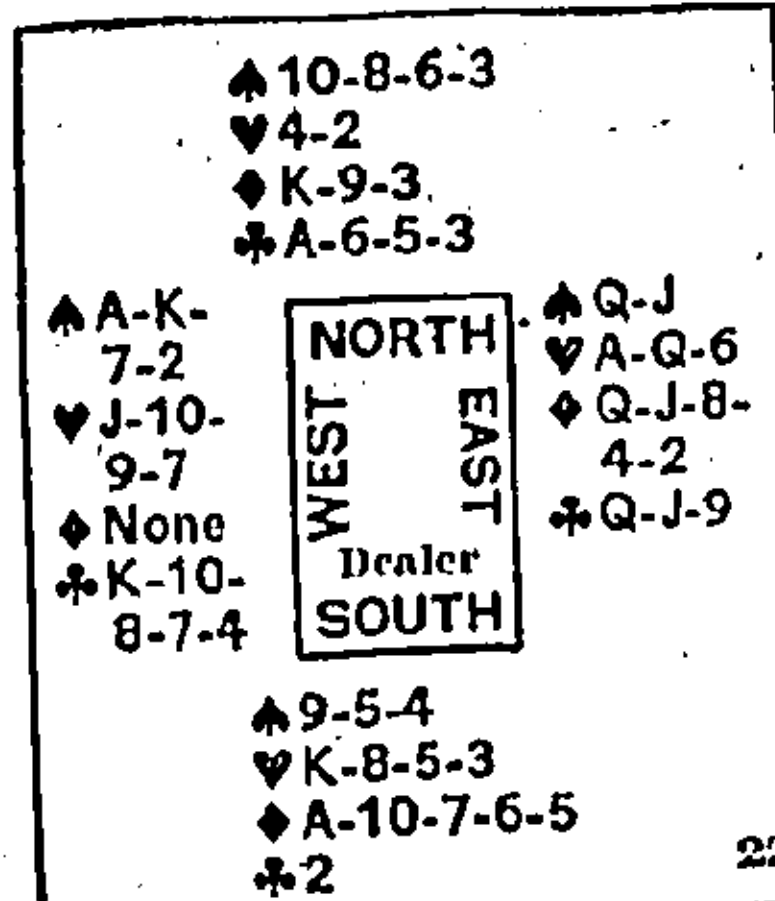

Progressive bidding between partners in contract should be done with a definite aim—that is, to try to find the fit of the hand.

Generally it does not pay to play a hand at no trump when either of the two hands has a void suit, but if the bidding indicates that partner has the missing suit well stopped, and you feel that the tricks necessary for game can be won in the side suits, then you may allow the hand to be played at no trump.

The following unusually interesting hand was played in the recent Ohio State Individual Championship tournament of the American Bridge League. Two pairs received very nice scores on the board—one pair making four no trump and another pair making four hearts doubled.

The Bidding

The bidding at one table was as follows: South, West and North passed. East opened the contracting with one diamond. West made a one over one force of one spade. East went to two no trump, West bid three clubs and East went to three no trump.

Against the three no trump contract South opened a diamond which was won by North with the king. A diamond was returned, South winning with the ace and then shifting to spades.

East won with the jack and led the queen of clubs. When North refused to win, East laid down his queen of spades and then shifted to the jack of clubs. North now made the mistake of winning the second club, which made all the rest of the tricks good for the declarer.

At the other table West felt that his partner ought to have a fit for one of the majors and so, instead of letting the hand be played at three no trump, he went to four hearts, which South made the mistake of doubling.

The three of spades was opened and won by dummy's jack, and the queen of spades was immediately cashed. The queen of clubs was then played, North winning with the ace and immediately returning the three of clubs, which South ruffed with the three of hearts. South made a nice lead of a small diamond, declarer trumping.

If the declarer had made the mistake of getting rid of his nine of clubs in dummy his contract would have been defeated. His next play was the jack of hearts. South put up a nice defence, refusing to win.

Declarer led the ten of hearts and refused to take the second finesse, going right up with the ace. A club was returned from dummy and all South could do was to cash his king of hearts.

CAPTIVES' HOPES

CHANCE OF FREEDOM FOR BRITISHERS

Yingkow, July 14.
The messenger who was sent out on July 11, to take letters to the pirate band, which is holding captive the three British officers of the Nanchang, returned with three letters on Thursday night. Two letters are from the pirates and are addressed to the British Consul and the gendarmes.

The letters suggest that a reliable intermediary be sent out. The third letter is from the three captives. They indicate that they had a rough time following the encounter between Manchukuo troops and the pirates on July 5. They were taken ashore from the junk in which they had been held prisoner for so long, with a pair of guards for each of them, and for the first time they were bound.

A messenger took out the Japanese reply to the pirates' note this morning.

Prospects of the release of the three men are considered bright. —Reuter.

JUNK PIRATED

CARGO LOOTED: CREW TRUSSSED UP

A piracy in Chinese waters was reported to the Police yesterday when a cargo-boat P3825 returned to Hongkong waters, after being in pirate hands for four days.

It was stated that the cargo-boat left Hongkong on July 8 with a cargo of potatoes worth $200, her destination being Deep Bay. The cargo belonged to the Wing Chong Lung of No. 100 Connaught Road West.

By 2 a.m. the next day, the cargo-boat had reached Tai Chan, a customs station opposite Deep Bay. After leaving the station, it met another junk, which opened fire on the crew and ordered them to stop. The uncomplaining order was instantly obeyed and the other junk, which was painted red, came alongside. Eight men, two of them armed with rifles and the others with various other weapons, boarded the junk and trussed up the four members of the crew.

The men from the pirate junk took charge of the cargo boat for four days. At 2 a.m. on the fifth day they put in at Tai O where they set the four members of the pirate boat ashore.

In their report to the Police, the members of the cargo boat stated that besides taking away their cargo of potatoes, the pirates helped themselves to other property valued at $150 and $1.50 in money. The total loot amounted to $351.50.

at infrequent intervals, but nothing of a definite nature has taken place in the shape of negotiations, for his captors still adhere to their demands for ransom before they will agree to release him. —Reuter.
